The Bildungsroman, that is, the novel of education or formation, was a dominant genre of nineteenth-century literature. Tracing the lives of characters through familiar coming-of-age plots—growing up, leaving home, and making one’s way in the world—the Bildungsroman showcases the novel’s ability to express both individual hopes and social constraints, youthful ideals and mature realizations, “great expectations” and “lost illusions.” In this seminar, we will undertake an in-depth study of several classics of the genre by Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, Jane Austen, Gustave Flaubert, Thomas Hardy, and Edith Wharton. Along the way we will touch on many of the topics and essential tensions of the Bildungsroman: love, desire, and courtship; the family and its substitutes; class, money, and social mobility; the shaping role of gender and the limited social choices afforded to women; and the vocation of art or writing as an alternative to more mainstream careers. We will read a selection of critical materials on the Bildungsroman, and on style and genre more broadly. We will also consider accounts of social and moral development as a way to think about the relationship between literature and historical change.

COURSE POLICIES

Attendance. Attendance is an essential component of the seminar. Absences (unless excused by an official note from a doctor, academic advisor, or coach) will adversely affect your participation grade. Lateness to seminar will similarly affect your grade. Absences for religious observance are permitted, but please check in with me at the beginning of the semester in this regard. If you are not able to make it to seminar for any reason, please email me in advance.

Late Work. Weekly responses will not be counted towards your final grade if late. Papers will be docked a third of a grade (i.e., from A- to B+) for every day they are late beyond the deadline.

Electronics. Laptops and/or tablets are permitted in the classroom only for taking notes or consulting secondary texts. Phones and other electronic devices are not permitted.

Academic Integrity. This course abides by the Honor Code of Columbia College (http://bulletin.columbia.edu/columbia-college/standards), with which you should familiarize yourself. Any violation of academic integrity described therein will incur a failing grade for the course and will moreover be reported to the relevant authorities.

Accessibility and Accommodations. The Office of Disability Services (ODS) facilitates equal access for students with disabilities by coordinating reasonable accommodations and support services. In order to secure such accommodations and services, you must first register with the ODS (https://health.columbia.edu/disability-services). If you have any concerns about accessibility and/or accommodations, feel free to contact me at any time.
